Course Description

Examination of the work of Net-based artists and investigation of the Internet as a vehicle to extend art and design practice.

Internet art (often referred to as net art) is a form of digital artwork distributed via the Internet. The term Internet art typically does not refer to art that has been simply digitized and uploaded to be viewable over the Internet. This can be done through a web browser, such as images of paintings uploaded for viewing in an online gallery. Rather, this genre relies intrinsically on the Internet to exist, taking advantage of such aspects as an interactive interface and connectivity to multiple social and economic cultures and micro-cultures. It refers to the Internet as a whole, not only to web-based works

Prerequisites &/or Co-requisites

None.

Objectives of the Course

Upon successful completion of this course, students should:

1. Have a basic comprehension of how the Internet functions, and how web pages are created, stored, and displayed.
2. Understand the ideas behind web and net art, including how to use the Internet as a key element of a creative work.
3. Understand the use of algorithms in a creative process; be able to create artistic works using these paradigms using a computer language or other tool.
4. Be familiar with basic techniques in visualization using a computer.
5. Understand basic strategies for interaction design and their implementation.
6. Know how images and sounds are stored on a computer, how they can be created and edited, and their role in creating art works on the Internet.

Writing/Plagiarism

Writing skills are not exclusive to English courses and, in fact, should cross all disciplines. The University supports the belief that throughout their University careers, students should be taught how to write well so that when they graduate their writing abilities will be far above the minimal standards required at entrance. Consistent with this belief, students are expected to do a substantial amount of writing in their University courses and, where appropriate, members of faculty can and should use writing and the grading thereof as a factor in the evaluation of student work. The services provided by the Writing Support Services can be utilized by all undergraduate and graduate students who feel they require further assistance.

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possibly suspension or expulsion from the university. Visual art projects submitted for course credit must be produced by the student specifically for this class. Students must not submit projects if credit has or will be provided for it in another class. This includes re-worked assignments from previous or concurrent courses, unless permission is provided in writing by the instructor. Additionally, the student is asked to be mindful of using visual sources from the internet, ensuring that that material is not derived from any on-line or other available source, and that appropriate copyright permission is granted, when required.
